Red Riding Hood

Grandma

Wolf

Woodcutter

Hello, my name's Red Riding Hood. People call me that because of my lovely red coat with a big red hood. (She sings) Tum-te-tum-te-tum.

She meets Mr. Woodcutter.

Hello Red Riding Hood. That's a yummy basket of food.

Yes Mr Wood Cutter, I'm taking it to my grandma who lives in the woods as she hasn't been feeling very well.

That's very nice of you. Now promise me, whatever you do, you mustn't talk to the wolf – he is very, very bad.

I promise. Bye Mr Woodcutter.

Just then a wolf appears.

Hello little girl, what's your name and where are you going?

I'm Little Red Riding Hood and I am going to visit my Grandma and take her this food as she is not well. Oh no, you're the wolf, I shouldn't have told you anything.

I'm not so bad really. Tell me, where does your Grandma live?

I'm not going to tell you that her house is at the end of this path in the woods... Oh no, I've told you!

Don't be worried. I know, why don't you stop and pick her some flowers? She'll like that.

Thank you Mr Wolf. That's a very good idea. (Picks flowers.)
This one's nice and this one...

That'll keep little Red busy for a while so I can go and eat Grandma – hee hee hee hee!

Next scene: the wolf is at Grandma's house. The wolf knocks on the door.

Who's there?

(Trying to sound like Red Riding Hood) Little Red Riding Wolf, I mean Hood.

Lift the latch and come in, dear.

Hello Grandma – or should I say “Hello lunch!”

The wolf quickly gobbles up Grandma in one big gulp.

If I put this bonnet on, Red Riding Hood, will think that I'm Grandma.
Then I'll eat her for a tasty tea.

There's a knock on the door.

Who's there?

Little Red Riding Hood, Grandma.

Lift the latch and come in, dear.

She comes in and walks over to 'Grandma' in bed.

Good morning, Grandma. You really don't look well at all. You've gone all hairy and my, what big eyes you have.

All the better to see you with my dear.

And what big ears you have, Grandma?

All the better to hear you with, child.

But Grandma, what big teeth you have?

All the better to eat you with.

The wolf jumps out of bed and chases Little Red Riding Hood.

Eeeeeeeee! Help!

Just then Mr. Woodcutter bursts into the house.

Take that, you naughty wolf. I'm going to get you with my axe.
Now let's get Grandma out.

He chops the wolf with his axe. The wolf is killed and they get Grandma out of the wolf.

Thank-you for saving us Mr. Woodcutter, it was horrible inside the wolf's belly.
Now you really must stay and have some tea and some of this food that my lovely grand-daughter has just brought me.
